Preface

Running any organisation in today's world can be difficult, and particularly so for organisations in the voluntary and community sector. Such organisations provide much needed services and support and work under the close scrutiny of their supporters, funders, regulators and the wider public. They are held to a very high standard – at a minimum, they are expected to be successful, ethical and legally compliant.

However, while expectations of the voluntary and community sector are high, in return they receive a great deal of the public's trust, confidence and support. It is to them the public looks when they are in greatest need. Unfortunately, the public's trust and confidence are very easy to lose and, once gone, can be almost impossible to gain back.

That is why tools, such as this revised governance health check, are so important. This step-by-step assessment provides a practical and evidence-based way to encourage and facilitate better governance and accountability on an ongoing basis. Not only will this assist your organisation in adhering to the key principles of the Code of Good Governance, but it will also support you in demonstrating that adherence and identifying areas where you may wish to make changes or improve. There is a strength in organisations which look after their own internal health to ensure they are the best they can be.

At the Commission, we too are always striving to review and improve with ongoing assessments and learning at the core of our own Board oversight. Through this process, we aim to continue growing as an enabling and supportive regulator, working with groups and organisations such as the Developing Governance Group to deliver information and advice. Together with my fellow Commissioners, I welcome the publication of this revised good governance health check and I strongly encourage management committees and Boards to make the most of the help and guidance it provides.

Good Governance – A Health Check

Introduction

The Code of Good Governance sets out five principles and practices of good governance for voluntary and community organisations. The 3rd Edition of the Code was launched in November 2021 by the Developing Governance Group following consultation with the voluntary and community sector. While it is not mandatory, it has been widely accepted as the set of standards for governance practice in the sector.

This Governance Health Check is a self-assessment tool which has also been devised by the Developing Governance Group as a practical resource to assist committees / boards to work towards adhering to the principles of the Code. It should help committees / boards of any size to demonstrate good governance practices to their stakeholders, beneficiaries and funders alike. This latest edition has been revised in line with the 3rd Edition of the Code of Good Governance.

Using the Governance Health Check

Throughout the Health Check the questions refer to the 'board', this is intended to mean the committee, management or executive committee, board of directors or trustees or any other name given to the governing body of the organisation.

Although it should not be overly burdensome, it is strongly recommended that an appropriate amount of time is set aside for the board to use this tool. For example, a whole meeting could be dedicated to completing the questionnaire. It would also be beneficial to appoint at least one board member to lead the process of ensuring that actions are carried forward including organising any training identified.

When the Health Check is being filled out, board members should be mindful that it is an internal document for their organisation and should not feel inhibited about answering the questions honestly. The aim of the questionnaire is to help boards to review their governance arrangements, check that they have appropriate systems in place for both the legal requirements and development of best practice and identifying areas where they could improve. The Health Check is a best practice tool - it is not mandatory.

It uses a scale as a self-assessment tool. When you are completing it, it is important to consider what evidence you have to help you determine where you are on the scale as outlined below:

- Fully Met: You are confident that the procedure is actively in place and you have the evidence to support it
- Part Met: You partly carry out the practice or the practice needs adapting or improving and you have some evidence to support it
- Not Met: You do not carry out the practice and you have little or no evidence

You can then list the practices in the column entitled 'our evidence'. A list of examples under the 'suggested evidence' section has been included to be used as a prompt. Please note that this is not an exhaustive list as it is recognised that different organisations, depending on their activities and beneficiaries, will be subject to various regulations and will therefore need to provide additional evidence to certain questions. You may find that a small number of questions are not relevant to your organisation, for example, if you have no employees then the questions which relate to employment will be applicable. For these you can simply write 'not applicable or n/a' in the evidence box and explain why.

Once areas requiring improvement have been identified, the 'actions' box at the end of the questions under each principle should be filled out. Additional guidance and a range of practical resources are linked into each of the five governance principles, available to download from www.diycommitteeguide.org which will assist the board to implement the identified actions.

The Developing Governance Group encourages organisations that use the Code and the Governance Health Check to state this in their annual report and explain what improvements have been made as a result.

The Code of Good Governance is also available in hard copy. If your board members would like to have their own pocket-sized version, then please contact NICVA or Volunteer Now to arrange collection.

Glossary of Terms

Accountability is the duty to explain the ways in which an individual or group has carried out, or caused to be carried out, the obligations placed upon them by law, a governing body or constitutional document. While the discharge of these activities/obligations may be delegated to others, the obligation to account for the actions cannot be delegated.

Appraisal is a formal assessment of performance over a set time frame.

Assets are everything your organisation owns that are of value, including buildings, equipment, money, trademarks and intelligence. Can also include intangible items such as reputation, skills and experience.

Autonomous is a self-governing, independent body which is free from external control and constraint.

Beneficiaries are the people your organisation is set up to help, those who benefit from what you do.

Board is a group of elected or appointed people who are ultimately accountable and collectively responsible for the governance and strategic direction of an organisation. Sometimes known as the Management Committee in smaller organisations.

Community audit is a survey of the needs of the local community.

Compliance is the act of taking steps to comply with relevant laws, policies, and regulations.

Conflicts of interest may arise in a situation where a board member may obtain personal benefit from a particular decision in relation to the organisation, or when a personal interest may get in the way of making decisions in the best interests of the organisation.

Culture is the ideas, customs, and social behaviour of a particular people, society, or organisation.

Cyber Security is the protection measures put in place to keep IT systems safe and secure.

Delegate is to give another person the authority to do work and / or take decisions on your behalf.

Delegated authority is the decision making power which has been given to a sub-committee or person so that they can carry out a particular task or activity. The board, however, remain accountable for the outcome of the delegated work.

Digital refers to the use of technology to store, use and communicate information electronically.

Diversity can encompass many characteristics such as: age, gender, race, ethnicity, religion, marital status, sexual orientation, economic, cultural and social background, level of educational attainment and professional background. Recognising diversity in governance is about respecting and valuing people's differences and enabling them to contribute and realise their full potential within an inclusive culture.

Effectiveness is being able to bring about the intended or expected result.

Encryption is the protection of data that is either stored or transmitted to render it unreadable without a security key so that only authorised persons can view it.

Equality is about ensuring that every individual has an equal opportunity to make the most of their lives and talents; it also means that we ensure that nobody is treated less favourably than other people or being harassed on any of the prohibited equality grounds.

Equity is the absence of unfair, avoidable or remediable differences among groups of people, whether those groups are defined socially, economically, demographically, or geographically or by other dimensions of inequality (eg sex, gender, ethnicity, disability, or sexual orientation).

Ethics are standards of morality and conduct of either an individual or organisation.

Firewall is a digital barrier or filter between a trusted IT system or network and outside electronic connections such as the internet.

Good relations is to promote the growth of relations between people that acknowledge the religious, political and racial context in NI, and seek to promote respect, equity and trust, and embrace diversity in all its forms.

Governance is about leadership and ensuring that an organisation is effectively and properly run. It has been defined as "the systems and processes concerned with ensuring the overall direction, effectiveness, supervision and accountability of an organisation."

Governing document is the written set of rules governing an organisation eg a constitution, trust deed or articles of association.

ICO is the Information Commissioner's Office which is the data protection regulator.

ICT (information and communication technologies) refers to technologies that provide access to information through telecommunications, similar to IT (information technology) but with the focus primarily on communication technologies.

Integrity is used to describe soundness of moral character; this is demonstrated through adherence to moral and ethical principles.

Monitoring is collecting and recording information in a routine and systematic way to check progress against plans and enable evaluation.

Not-for-profit organisations may be better described as not-for-personal-profit as these organisations may make a surplus in line with their Objects but they don't distribute this among the members but rather use it to further the purposes of the organisation.

Objects this clause (sometimes called purposes) which expresses the aims of the organisation is laid out in the governing document. It also describes who is going to benefit from the work of the organisation and in which geographical area.

Probity is the quality of having strong moral principles, honesty and decency.

Procurement is the process of buying/acquiring goods or services.

Prudence is exercising care, caution, and good judgement as well as wisdom in looking ahead.

Public Benefit is one of the key components of what makes a purpose charitable. A benefit must flow from the charity's purpose; be capable of being demonstrated and be beneficial, not harmful to the public, or to a section of the public and it must not provide a private benefit to individuals unless the benefit is incidental.

Purposes it is the statement of what your organisation has been set up to achieve, set out in the governing document. It should reflect the organisation's broad aims, rather than the day-to-day activities. Also known as objects, objectives or aims.

Quorum is the minimum number of voting members that must be present in order to proceed with a meeting. Quorums for general meetings and committee meetings are usually stated in the governing document.

Risk management is the analysis and management of risk. It involves the identification and assessment of risk, the decision whether to accept, guard against, prevent or insure against the occurrence and the process of implementing such decisions.

Safe culture means that anyone who interacts with the organisation should be treated with dignity and fairness and feel that they are in a safe and supportive environment which promotes and respects the rights of all.

Safeguarding means ensuring there are measures in place to prevent harm to staff, volunteers, beneficiaries and anyone who comes into contact with your organisation. It also means responding appropriately where harm has occurred to an individual. While safeguarding is everyone's responsibility, trustees need to provide leadership on culture, policy and procedures which promote and respect the rights of children and adults.

Solvent means having enough money to pay all the debts owed to other people or organisations.

Stakeholder is anyone with a significant interest in the effectiveness of an organisation eg members, trustees, beneficiaries, staff, volunteers, funders, suppliers, regulators.

Subject access request is the term under data protection regulations which gives a person the right to access the personal data that an organisation holds on them.

Values are the principles and beliefs which the organisation seeks to apply, both in setting its mission and aims, and in its day-to-day operations.

Vision is what the world will look like if the organisation is successful in achieving its mission.

Voluntary and community sector is made up of organisations which are governed by voluntary boards. These non-statutory, autonomous, not-for-profit organisations are usually constituted formally and may or may not be charitable. They include sports, religious, societies and social enterprises, as well as any organisation registered as a Charity, Community Amateur Sports Club, (CASC) or Community Interest Company (CIC).

Volunteering is defined as the commitment of time and energy, for the benefit of society and the community, the environment, or individuals outside (or in addition to) one's immediate family. It is undertaken freely and by choice, without concern for financial gain.
